

ARCHAEOLOGY - 2014

Archaeology is the scientific study of the prehistoric and historic human past. Archaeologists examine past cultures through the study of artefacts, human remains and other sources. Students in this school learn from working on a range of archaeological sites in Australasia, the Pacific Islands, Central America and the Near East. They also gain skills in our Archaeology Laboratory and our Anthropology Museum that enable them to assess the importance of the human past in understanding our culturally diverse modern world. Archaeology is taught at both undergraduate and postgraduate levels.

Archaeology is available as

- a single and extended plan in the Bachelor of Arts or as a major or a minor in the Diploma in Arts
- a sequence of elective courses in the Bachelor of Social Science
- an elective as part of other degrees offered by UQ
